

ANTICIPATING AND MITIGATING RISKS IN AN ERA OF DISRUPTION

SAVE THE DATE! – 4 NOVEMBER 2022

The geo-economic and political tensions accentuated by environmental upheavals and the Russia-Ukraine conflict are aggravating the global supply chain. These uncertainties have resulted in inflation and trade disruptions. Companies now face another test of business resilience and sustainability against the backdrop of continuing global uncertainty and instability.

Organisations respond to these risks at different paces. It has become more critical than ever for internal audit to transform to future-proof their operations to remain relevant in today's disruptive world. This year's Annual Conference will address the challenges and opportunities facing internal auditors today. How prepared are organisations for risk-induced disruption? What is the role of internal auditors in supporting organisations to navigate through disruptions? What role does the board play in working with the three lines roles in driving change in the organisation?
