Sustainable value - value that can last over time - is a goal every organisational leader strives to achieve. However, it cannot be achieved through "growth" at the expense of the environment, stakeholders and risk management. Focusing on sustainable growth through effective risk management can deliver exceptional risk-adjusted returns. How does internal audit enable an organisation to optimally manage its resources, especially during disruption? Can identifying and managing risks capitalise on opportunities for growing value? How do organisations address regulation changes, especially ESG, to stay relevant?

Warning Signs of Fraud and Corruption – Is your Organisation Vulnerable to Corruption?

Speaker
Dr Sarjit Singh

Chairman, Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand Singapore Overseas Regional Council and Advocacy Committee Member of IIA Singapore

Fraud and corruption pose significant organisational risks, impacting reputation, financial stability, and integrity. This session highlights the warning signs of fraud and corruption within organisations and explores strategies to identify vulnerabilities and strengthen anti-corruption measures. What are some real-world examples of fraud and corruption cases that have had a significant impact on organisations? What are the common warning signs and red flags that indicate the presence of fraud and corruption? How can organisations proactively identify and monitor these warning signs within their operations?
