Audit innovation involves adopting and utilising various technologies to streamline procedures and improve quality. This includes using data analytics, artificial intelligence, machine learning, and robotic process automation to automate repetitive tasks, analyse large volumes of data, identify anomalies, and gain deeper insights. Can innovation in audit practices keep pace with the rapidly changing business environment and the increasing complexity of financial transactions? How can internal auditors leverage technology? How do internal auditors conduct ongoing assessments, promptly identify potential issues, and provide proactive recommendations for improvement?
