

IIA Singapore President, Mr Koh Chin Beng shared his views on the topic, “Apart from Covid-related developments, what is your biggest hope (or fear) for 2022?”, which was published in The Business Times on 10 January 2022.

“The last two years were dominated by a global pandemic and social and geopolitical issues that will carry over into 2022. My biggest hope is for everyone in our community to be safe and healthy - physically, mentally and emotionally. These trying times are taking a toll on us all. It is important that we take care of all aspects of our health and the health of those around us.

Volatility is placing greater demands on employees. We need to focus on our people. The “great resignation” is looming over the audit industry, and it is important that as leaders, we plan for the next normal to meet the growing expectations of internal auditors.

The road ahead is long, winding and uncertain. But one thing for sure is that together as a community, we would face any challenges bravely and with solidarity.”
